NBT Celebrates National Youth Day with Noted Historian Shri Vikram Sampath

On the occasion of National Youth Day which is celebrated annually on 12 January 2022, National Book Trust, India (NBT) organized a talk to celebrate the birth Anniversary of Swami Vivekananda— one of India's greatest writers, orator and humanitarian through an online event. The theme of the event was "It's All in the Mind" where the chief guest, Dr Vikram Sampath, noted historian and writer addressed the youth and encouraged them to read and write books and become future established authors for the coming generation of aspiring writers. Highlighting the teachings of Swami Vivekananda, Dr Sampath remarked that the teachings of Swami Vivekananda are universal and we should invoke them in our day-to-day life. He added that every work is sacred and it is the greatest sin to think one-self weak.

On this occasion, NBT also launched the training framework of YUVA- PM's Mentorship Scheme for Young Authors, where the 75 selected authors would be mentored about different aspects of fiction writing. "This training programme is being launched on an auspicious day," said Dr Sampath on the launch of PM's Mentorship Scheme.

Speaking on the importance of the scheme, Dr Sampath said that the journey of the authors has just begun and they will be mentored at multi-levels to become good writers. It is up to the YUVA authors to make it as a writer and it is important that they read more and more books, research and present their words in a creative and meticulous way. He further added that the youth have to imagine the power of words and thoughts. It is through words that they can cast the magic spell on someone and manifest their thoughts.

In his keynote address, Prof. Govind Prasad Sharma, Chairman, NBT said that at a very young age Swami Vivekananda awakened the youth of India and established India at the international level. Swami Vivekananda cared for the poor, women, youth and oppressed classes of India. “On the 75th year of independence the selected YUVA authors have to become ambassadors of Indian knowledge system,” said Shri Yuvraj Malik, Director, NBT. He further said that to become a good author it is important to read books as all knowledge are processed and re-processed to create new knowledge.

Recalling the address of Swami Vivekananda at Chicago, Shri Yuvraj Malik said that Vivekananda was only 30 years old when, through his address the world recognized the power of Indian value system and Indian knowledge system. He also added that the Scheme will carry forward the dream of India as Vishwa Guru in the 21st century.

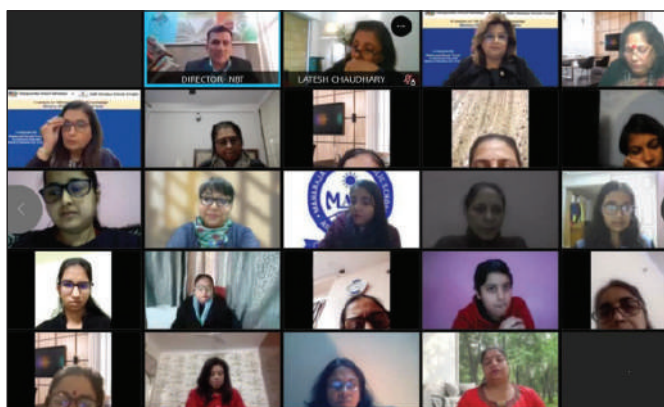

During the launch, five YUVA authors took the opportunity to talk about their proposed books and what the scheme meant for them as potential writers. More than 500 participants attended the online event and many of them shared their views with the speakers.

In furtherance of the Campaign, in the session organised on ‘Developing Reading Habit among Children and the Importance of the Read India Campaign,’ Shri Yuvraj Malik, Director NBT, addressed more than 1000 principals, educators and school students.

has become even more critical, said Shri Vineet Kumar. When cyber awareness is low, people could become victims of cyber crime, he said.

The risk of exposure to digital criminal activity such as identity theft, financial fraud, and fake news amongst others, is more prevalent than ever before. The workshop was aimed at educating and providing guidance about staying safe online, whether while simply browsing or using online-based services.

CPF is an award-winning NGO and the global think tank of cyber security and policy experts, currently having a global footprint. It was setup with the core objective to work against Cyber Warfare and Cyber Weapons. BOOK EXCERPT

Deeds of Gallantry: Fifty Years of the 1971 Victory

What led to the creation of Pakistan in 1947? What led East Pakistan and West Pakistan to be separated by 1600kms of the Indian Territory? Read this informative book to understand what led to the partition of India and the subsequent partition of East Pakistan and West Pakistan that led to the creation of what we today call Bangladesh.

During the Indo-Pak war 1971 India launched a four pronged attack on East Pakistan. XIII Corps in the north-west, II Corps in the west, IV Corps in the east and 101 CZA in the north penetrated from four directions to bring an early end to the war in East Pakistan. Of these II Corps led by Lt Gen TN Raina carried the attack in Jessore-Jhenida sector with 4 and 9 Divisions. Pakistan had pitted 9 Division to defend the area.

4 Division, which had secured some Pak Border observation posts, east of Karimpur before declaration of war was tasked to capture nodal points of Jhenida and Magura to clear the way for ferry sites at Madhumati and Padma rivers. But to advance on Tibanagar-Kotchandpur-15

P at Darsana had to be neutralized. The task was entrusted to 41 Brigade (5/1 Gurkha, 2/9 Gurkha, 22 Rajput, 5 Guards and a squadron of 54 Cavalry) with orders to accomplish it by the last light on 4 December.

Darsana was an important tactical feature close to West Bengal border and dominated the axes Uthali Kapasdanga and Uthali-Chaudanga. The Pak commander had organized the Defence of Darsana in five segments viz front line bunkers, Club area, Darsana Halt, Railway Station and village Chandpur. Each segment was protected by shell proof bunkers made of railway sleepers. These could be cleared only with artillery and tank support.

The Pakistani 18 Punjab, supported by Chafee tanks, mortars and guns, was entrusted with the task of defending Darsana. They had dug up anti-tank trenches on all sides and had covered the south and east approaches with mines. The Pakistani Commander himself considered his eastern defences impregnable on account of mines and bunkers. Incidentally, Indian Brigade chose to attack Darsana from eastern side.

As per the Brigade plan, 5/1 Gurkha Rifles was to capture Darsana Halt, Railway Station, Club Area, and Chandpur in the first phase. In the second phase, 2/9 Gurkha Rifles were to overtake them and capture the segments. To prevent the exodus of the enemy, 5 Guards were to set up roadblock at Lokhnathpur, a road junction north of Darsana.

The Division Commander desired the attack to be launched on 4 December. But before the attack, some preparations had to be made. 22 Rajputs proceeded to secure the area Akandabaria and the line of bunkers along the railway track between Darsana Halt and Chandpur village. They managed to neutralise Pakistani defences in area Rangiarpota during the night of 2/3 December, and established a base at Akandabaria for launching an attack on Darsana.

On 4 December, the Commander of 5/1 Gurkha Rifles ordered the attack on Darsana. The plan was to systematically capture the forward line of enemy bunkers, the Club area, Darsana Halt and subsequently the town Chandpur. The Battalion moved from the firm base at Uthali on the early morning of 4 December and formed up at Akandabaria. The forward line of the enemy bunkers was destroyed by Indian tanks and artillery. The Battalion then advanced further towards the enemy defence line, and despite heavy artillery and small arm fire, was not deterred.

At 0700 hrs, 'D' Company launched the assault from the right flank along the railway line. It negotiated around 900 meters of minefield under heavy enemy artillery and small arms fire and cleared 35 enemy bunkers. As the men advanced closer to the enemy defences, a hand to hand fighting ensued. But in the end, Company was able to secure the objective.
